

Christine Daaé

Christine Daaé was born on the outskirts of the Swedish city of Uppsala, in a small commercial town.

She was a beautiful and innocent singer and dancer. She lost her father, a magnificent violinist who promised her that one day an angel of music would come down from heaven and take care of her. She was "adopted" by Madame Guiry and lives at the Opera Garnier, since then she believes that whoever teaches her to sing he is the "Angel of Music" and not the phantom of the opera.
